Professional Brief

With a career spanning nearly two decades, I began my journey in 2006 as the Head of the Department of Visual Communication. Since then, I have held several key academic positions, including Professor and Coordinator, where I have mentored and shaped the careers of countless students. My work extends beyond the academic realm I have also established myself as a freelancer and creative program producer, contributing to various television channels and film projects. This blend of academic leadership and hands-on industry experience has enabled me to bring a dynamic and practical approach to visual communication, combining theory with real-world application.
